For Businesses

- Be informed – monitor local emergencies
- Be prepared – know what kinds of emergencies and effect your business; conduct a risk assessment
- Talk – communicate with your employees, involve them in the planning process
- Practice – conduct drills and exercises to work out the kinks before an emergency strikes
- Continuity planning – how will your business operate before, during and after the emergency
- Deciding to stay or go
 - Insure facilities are prepared: boarded up, sandbags, etc.
 - Have disaster supplies for stay behind staff
 - Plan for disruption in basic services: utilities, water, etc.
- Review Insurance coverage – policies vary
- Cybersecurity – criminals will attack when you are weakest, make sure you protect your data.
